WELCOME TO AMBERLEY

WING COMMANDER
TANYA EVANS
Senior ADF Officer
RAAF Base Amberley

WELCOME TO ROYAL AUSTRALIAN AIR FORCE BASE AMBERLEY.

As the Senior Australian Defence Force Officer at Amberley, I have the privilege to represent our Defence people and their families in the wider South-East Queensland community and to concurrently ensure our base is ready to support the range of operational, training and industry capabilities that call Amberley home.

To begin, I want to acknowledge the Traditional Custodians of the lands on which RAAF Base Amberley lies; the Yuggera and the Ugarapul People. Further to the south where we operate the Evans Head Air Weapons Range is Bandjalang country. I pay our respects to their Elders, past and present and emerging and I'm genuinely grateful for the warm relationship we enjoy with the Elders of these communities.

If you're new to RAAF Amberley or South-East Queensland then, welcome. I really hope you (and your family) enjoy your time here. This Air Force base, RAAF Amberley, is our largest operational air base. Large in geographical area, but also incredibly diverse in the roles it supports. There is a range of Air Mobility and Air Combat aircraft stationed here as well as the engineering and logistics enterprises that support them; a noteworthy

Army footprint; along with a significant number of expeditionary Combat Support Group capabilities; industry and contractor operations; logistics, training and importantly, myriad services that support the welfare and wellbeing of our people. There's a lot going on at RAAF Base Amberley! All these different components combine to deliver airpower and joint capabilities to support Australia's national interests.

RAAF Base Amberley was originally constructed in 1939 and officially opened in June 1940. The base continues to grow in size and in the range of tasks it performs. For those interested in the history and evolution of the base, there's an article on pages 6-7 of this publication, or take a look at the storyboard at the Astra Centre (the main conference facility on the base) and you'll be able to better understand how the base has changed over its proud history. For the future, we've mapped out an Estate Base Plan which will deliver the right balance of operational and support infrastructure while concurrently meeting expectations for how we protect our people, our assets, our environment and the communities in which we live.

Again, welcome.

WELCOME TO COUNTRY

The Traditional custodians of this land welcome you to RAAF Base Amberley.

TERESA HARDING
Mayor, City of Ipswich

WELCOME TO IPSWICH, one of the most liveable and fastest growing cities in South-East Queensland.

Beautiful parks and natural areas, world-class heritage sites and a vibrant local restaurant scene are some of the wonderful experiences available to residents and visitors.

Our region is growing rapidly; in the past year we welcomed more than 6,200 residents and by 2041, more than 535,000 people are expected to call this city home.

Ipswich has a proud history with RAAF Base Amberley, and Ipswich City Council recognises the key role the Defence sector plays in our local economy and social fabric. It is the second largest export industry with a total $1.4 billion, almost one fifth (19.7%) of all exports, this compared with 5.8% across Queensland. Defence has played a pivotal role to the industry and its supply chain with 14% of value added and an increase of $313 million over five years.

Council is focused on our community and providing support to Defence and Defence families through city planning, industry attraction and advocacy.

My personal link to the Defence family is strong. I served in the Army and worked in the APS in Defence, my husband retired from RAAF recently after 34 years and 10 months of service and my son is a serving member of the RAAF, and another son served in the Army.

On behalf of Ipswich City Council, I welcome you to Ipswich and I hope you enjoy your posting at RAAF Base Amberley and living in Ipswich.

JIM MADDEN
State Member for Ipswich West

I AM PROUD TO HAVE RAAF Base Amberley located in my electorate of Ipswich West and I have enormous respect for the personnel stationed at the base. I was fortunate to serve as an Air Force Cadet at the base.

I am available to assist you in navigating the various state government agencies and departments, such as the Department of Education, the Department of Transport and Main Roads and Queensland Health.

I sincerely hope you enjoy your placement at RAAF Base Amberley and if I can ever be of assistance to you, please do not hesitate in contacting me on 07 3447 3100, at ipswich.west@parliament.qld.gov.au, my office at Shop 1, 68 Hunter Street, Brassall 4305 or on Facebook at Jim Madden MP – Ipswich West.

AUSTRALIA'S LARGEST RAAF BASE

Since opening in 1940, RAAF Base Amberley has developed into a 'super base' with an increasingly diverse defence role.

RAAF BASE AMBERLEY is Air Force's largest base, employing approximately 6,000 military personnel, Commonwealth public servants and defence aviation contractors. Located in the Ipswich local government area, 8km south-west of the Ipswich CBD and 50km west of Brisbane, Queensland, the base incorporates approximately 2,500 hectares adjacent to the suburbs of Leichhardt and Wulkuraka to the east, Walloon to the northwest, Yamanto to the southeast and Karrabin to the northeast.

The site includes the Main Operating Area on Ipswich Amberley Road and Attached Property

2 on Haigslea Amberley Road. The base also incorporates the adjacent Hansen's Farm Conservation Area, Pascoe's Farm, Purga Small Arms Range and five buffer zones (varying in size). The management of RAAF Base Amberley also includes the co-management of the Evans Head Air Weapons Range with NSW Parks and Wildlife.

Prior to European settlement, the RAAF Base Amberley site and surrounding area were home to the Yuggera and Ugarapul clans.

The present-day RAAF Base Amberley has two runways (Runway 15/33, which runs in a southeast to northwest direction, and Runway 04/22, which runs in a west to east direction). It provides permanent facilities for five military aircraft types: F/A-18F Super Hornet, EA-18G Growler, C-17A Globemaster III, KC-30A Multi-Role Tanker Transport and C-27J Spartan.

The base also accommodates a range of joint capabilities, including RAAF Force Element Groups, Army units, Defence organisations, Australian Air Force Cadets, aerospace companies, retail outlets, base support contractors and the RAAF Amberley Aviation Heritage Centre.

HISTORY

Commencing in 1939, the construction of RAAF Base Amberley was described as one of the largest projects undertaken in Queensland at that time. The base was officially opened on 17 June 1940 and air base operations began the same month.

The first aircraft at the Station Headquarters was the Moth Minor No.A21-26, followed shortly by four CAC Wirraway aircraft. By the end of 1940, there were 54 aircraft based at Amberley. Over the next two years, the base was transformed into a centre of excellence for the assembly, maintenance and salvage of aircraft, which was the primary focus of the base during World War II.

While essential infrastructure works continued in order to support the assembling of aircraft for the United States Army Air Force and south-western Pacific operations, Amberley became part of a quiet revolution, with the RAAF leading the way in introducing women to the Defence workforce. By the end of WWII, the RAAF was the fourth largest air force in the world and RAAF Base Amberley had accommodated the CAC Wirraway, Lockheed Hudson, Martin B-26 Marauder, Curtiss P-40 Kittyhawk, Vultee A-31 Vengeance, Bell P-39 Airacobra, Republic P-43 Lancer and Boston Bombers, as well as Spitfires and B-24J Liberators.

In 1948, a Lincoln A73-11 crashed in the north-east corner of the airfield, bursting into flames on impact and killing all 16 service personnel on board.

Three years later, the first bomber in RAAF service to be fitted with ejection seats, the GAF Canberra Mk 20, arrived at the base, remaining in service, first as a bomber and then in target towing and photo reconnaissance roles, until 1982.

Prior to the Canberra bomber reaching the end of its service life and the eventual arrival of the much-awaited F-111C, the Australian Government accepted an offer from the United States Government to lease 24 McDonnell-Douglas F-4 Phantoms as a stopgap measure from 1970 to 1973. Sadly, only 23 of the 24 Phantoms were returned to the US as one was lost at sea with both crew members following an exercise at the Evans Head Air Weapons Range on the NSW Far North Coast.

In early 1973, the first six F-111C aircraft arrived at Amberley. This was followed a few months later with the formation of No.12 Squadron comprising CH-47 Chinook helicopters.

↓ Aerial view of RAAF Base Amberley circa 1940s.

The transfer of the battlefield helicopters from the RAAF to the Army in 1989 provided the opportunity for further expansion of aircraft capability on the base and three years later, 10 Caribou aircraft were relocated to Amberley.

The 1990s also saw the parade ground, which had been the heart of the base since the 1940s, converted to a car park and a new entrance gate installed, complete with a memorial garden and a static Canberra Bomber A84-201 that was the first Australian built GAF Canberra. It also came second in the 1953 London to Christchurch Air Race.

In 2000, redevelopment works commenced with the relocation of Combat Support Group (CSG) from Glenbrook, NSW, and new headquarters for No.82 Wing, while the base also hosted several operational combat support units and security and fire training capabilities.

Development of the 'super base' continued over the subsequent years, including the construction and refurbishment of accommodation, airfield upgrades, combined mess, gym, military working dog facilities, security and fire training and the Headquarters CSG building.

In 2010, after 37 years of service, the F-111 was retired, with two remaining on display, one at the main entrance to the base and the other at the RAAF Amberley Aviation Heritage Centre.

Throughout its life, RAAF Base Amberley has hosted elements of the Australian Army. From 1960 to 1973, it was home to Army Aviation and since 2006 has supported a variety of Army and joint force units.

In 2015, the Joint Logistics Facility was opened on a 22 hectare site in the centre of the base.

Today, RAAF Base Amberley plays a more diverse Defence role than ever before.

COMBAT SUPPORT GROUP

FORMED IN 1998,
COMBAT SUPPORT GROUP (CSG) is the largest Force Element Group (FEG) in the Royal Australian Air Force with more than 5,600 full-time and reserve personnel from 56 different musterings and specialisations. CSG personnel are employed in Headquarters CSG, Combat Support Division and across 27 squadrons in No.95 Wing, No.96 Wing and Health Services Wing.

As Air Force's most diverse FEG, CSG's motto is 'Project and Protect' which it achieves through the force projection of air power from airbases within Australia and globally as part of the Joint Force. CSG provides airbase operations and aerospace health capabilities, with CSG's airbases producing agile and integrated outcomes, regardless of the task.

Headquarters CSG provides the collective aim point for Australia's airbase network, providing the lead for CSG wings and units. Headquarters CSG affirms FEG preparedness for the Joint Force through dedicated personnel capability, force generation, capability management and development elements. CSG's logistics capability and airbase airworthiness is underpinned by the Headquarters' safety assurance, logistics and engineering capability cells.

COMBAT SUPPORT COORDINATION CENTRE

Combat Support Coordination Centre (CSCC) conducts FEG-level tactical planning for employment of CSG capabilities during exercises and operations. CSCC is a component of Combat Support Division (CSD), an operational-level division within the Air Operations Centre (AOC) at Bungendore. CSCC and CSD promote effective employment of CSG force elements throughout activity planning and execution. CSCC is a critical link to consolidate a broad range of CSG capabilities for projection of airpower domestically, regionally and globally. Level planning by Headquarters Joint Operations Command, Air Command and the AOC.

HEADQUARTERS NO.95 WING

Headquarters No.95 Wing is responsible for the planning and execution of exercises and operational activities as well as ensuring Combat Support Group operational readiness through collective training. It achieves this through the headquarters staff and the eight operational squadrons. It strives to deliver agile, short-notice combat support to help generate and sustain air power within the national support base network and deployed locations in single service, joint and coalition environments.

NO.1 COMBAT COMMUNICATIONS SQUADRON

Originally formed in September 1965 as the Air Transportable Telecommunications Unit before being renamed in July 1999, No.1 Combat Communications Squadron (1CCS) provides communications and information systems in domestic and deployed environments.

From humble beginnings with 12 members, 1CCS has grown to over 300 personnel and can support communications and information systems from established Air Force bases to very remote locations anywhere in the world. They are often required to provide tactical field and temporary communications support during disaster relief operations, both in Australia and overseas.

With a headquarters at RAAF Base Amberley, 1CCS also has three flights situated at RAAF bases Amberley, Williamtown and Edinburgh.

NO.2 SECURITY FORCES SQUADRON

Providing High Threat Response and specialised reaction force capabilities, 2 Security Forces (2SECFOR) Squadron plays a pivotal role in protecting Air Force to project air and space power as part of the joint force.

The squadron originated with the creation of a defence pool in the Netherlands East Indies towards the end of 1944. Defence Pool's role was to provide close protection of RAAF installations under the command of the First Tactical Air Force. From this start, 2SECFOR has built a distinguished heritage of battle honours and contributions to operations; from World War II, on Morotai Island, Malaysia, Brunei, Borneo, Indonesia and the Philippines, through deployment in the Vietnam War, then to East Timor in 2000 (receiving a unit meritorious citation), and more recently, operations in Sumatra, Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Solomon Islands and Papua New Guinea.

As the high threat reaction squadron, 2SECFOR is equipped with armoured Bushmaster and Hawkei Protected Mobility Vehicles and Ultra-Light Tactical All-Terrain Vehicles to enhance air base mobility capabilities.

The squadron continues in the proud traditions of its past while continuously evolving to be ready and meet emerging threat challenges. Employing a mix of close combatant and protective security experts trained to operate in high threat environments, it provides the Air Force with agile security and combat options throughout the threat spectrum. 2SECFOR is ready to protect air operations against any adversary, anytime at any airfield.

NO.295 SQUADRON

No.295 Squadron provides individual and collective training for Combat Support Group. The squadron was formed in 2014 from elements of the 395 Expeditionary Combat Support Wing to serve as a central training element for Combat Support Group. The squadron supports the preparation, mounting and deployment of expeditionary Combat Support Group elements through training, mentoring and coaching of deploying forces. It also facilitates Force Generation of Combat Support Group units through planning of, and participation in, exercises and other collective training opportunities.

NO.382 SQUADRON

No.382 Squadron (382SQN) was formed in December 2013 and is one of three Air Force Contingency Response Squadrons. The squadron provides Air Force with the ability to project airpower from airbases within Australia and globally where there is no permanent airbase footprint. 382SQN thrives in the provision of agile, rapid, responsive and effective airpower projection at short notice.

The squadron maintains a readiness that allows for deployment where needed in a very short time frame. While the squadron is responsive globally, it has the capacity to also provide Defence Aid to the civil community in response to civil disasters.

HEADQUARTERS 96 WING

Originally established in November 2000 as 396 Combat Support Wing in Darwin, the wing was renamed Headquarters 96 Wing (96WG) and relocated to RAAF Base Amberley in January 2014.

While the headquarters resides at RAAF Base Amberley, 96WG is responsible for providing permanent airbase operational capabilities from Air Force's fixed bases. The wing consists of a headquarters element, 14 airbase operations squadrons, two bare bases and one forward-operating base, including one airbase operations squadron overseas in Malaysia. 96WG specialises in all facets of airbase operations, fundamentally contributing to the projection of air power by the RAAF, and enabling the deployment and sustainment of a joint force by air.

NO.23 SQUADRON

No.23 Squadron (23SQN) is the airbase operations support squadron at RAAF Base Amberley. Originally formed as a Citizen Air Force unit at Laverton, Victoria in May 1937, 23SQN's presence in Queensland dates back to 1943, although the squadron has only been based at RAAF Base Amberley since September 1955 and has supported Amberley's flying squadrons since 1960.

23SQN provides a wide range of capabilities that are coordinated through the 23SQN Air Base Command Post. These capabilities include Airfield Engineering, an Air Weapons Range, Catering, Chaplains, Aviation and Structural Fire Fighting, Physical Training Instruction, Logistics Services, Mechanical Equipment Operations and Maintenance, Air Movements, Aviation Safety Management, Visits Coordination, Road Movements, Aviation Refuelling and Base Armament Management. 23SQN also has a Base Warrant Officer and an Indigenous Liaison Officer who provide specialist support to other units on RAAF Base Amberley.

HEALTH SERVICES WING

Health Services Wing (HSW) formed in December 2001 and its headquarters moved to RAAF Base Amberley in January 2003. HSW is responsible for generating and sustaining agile and scalable aerospace health capabilities for the joint force. These capabilities include expeditionary Medical Treatment Facilities, a global strategic Aeromedical Evacuation System and aerospace health support to enable Airbase operations. The wing employs a mix of permanent and part-time health, medical specialist and support personnel to deliver aerospace health capability at the right place and at the right time to support joint operations.

NO.1 EXPEDITIONARY HEALTH SQUADRON

No.1 Expeditionary Health Squadron (1EHS) delivers deployable aerospace health support to RAAF and ADF operations. Headquartered at RAAF Base Amberley, 1EHS also has detachments at RAAF Bases Townsville, East Sale and Richmond.

As the lead for the deployable Air Force Role 2 Medical Treatment Facility and resuscitative surgical capabilities, 1EHS maintains specialist health elements to support sustained operations or short-notice contingency deployments.

its deployable capabilities include primary health/emergency departments, surgery, intensive care, dental, environmental health, general wards, pathology, medical imaging, logistics and a deployable health facility command and control element.

At permanent air bases, 1EHS also contributes to base health effects with personnel undertaking Garrison Clinical Duty within Joint Health Command health centres.

NO.3 AEROMEDICAL EVACUATION SQUADRON DETACHMENT AMBERLEY

No.3 Aeromedical Evacuation Squadron (3AMES) provides a specialised global aeromedical retrieval capability for the ADF. The squadron was originally formed in 1940 as No.3 RAAF Hospital, providing dedicated hospital services for more than 60 years before evolving into an expeditionary capability in early 2000s, then specialising in aeromedical evacuation from 2013.

With its headquarters at RAAF Base Richmond, NSW, and a detachment at RAAF Base Amberley, the squadron comprises a cadre of medical, nursing, paramedical, specialist critical care professionals and support personnel dedicated to the conduct of aeromedical evacuation missions on a variety of civilian and military aircraft including the C-17A Globemaster, C-130J Hercules and C-27J Spartan.

HEALTH OPERATIONAL CONVERSION UNIT

Health Operational Conversion Unit (HOCU) prepares health professionals to provide care in the operational environment including non-permissive, war fighting settings. Predominantly serving the Air Force we also provide training to navy, army and international partners.

HOCU provides 20 iterations of seven different courses to approximately 300 students per year. Courses include strategic and tactical Aeromedical Evacuation, trauma management, operational health support, health management, health operations and high acuity transfer.

AIR COMBAT GROUP

AIR COMBAT GROUP (ACG) is one of the largest Force Element Groups in the ADF, with more than 2,000 personnel across three wings, comprising nine squadrons. The group operates the F-35A Lightning II, EA-18G Growler, F/A-18F Super Hornet, Hawk 127 Lead-In Fighter and Pilatus PC-21, as well as maintaining the Combat Control Team capability.

ACG units are located at RAAF Bases Amberley, Pearce, Tindal and Williamtown, where the Headquarters is also located. There is a detachment of HQACG personnel at Amberley who are co-located with Headquarters No.82 Wing and perform engineering and fleet management, logistics, training support, and maintenance training activities to support 82WG operations.

HEADQUARTERS NO. 82 WING

No.82 Wing (82WG) is the RAAF's air combat and electronic attack wing. Headquartered at Amberley, the wing comprises No.1 Squadron and No.6 Squadron.

HQ 82WG provides resources, support and governance to the squadrons of 82WG, and higher headquarters. The wing has a high tempo around the globe with personnel frequently deployed overseas on, and in support of, international operations.

NO. 1 SQUADRON

No.1 Squadron (1SQN) was formed as a part of the Australian Flying Corp in 1916 and served with distinction in the Middle East during World War I. In 2010, 1SQN took delivery of the F/A-18F Super Hornet, becoming the first squadron to operate that aircraft outside of the US Military. Since then, 1SQN has completed two operational deployments to the Middle East with the Super Hornet as a part of Australia's commitment to the fight against ISIL, employing kinetic effects in support of local and coalition forces.

Although the F/A-18F Super Hornet was originally intended as a bridging capability as the RAAF phased out the F/A-18 'Classic' Hornet fleet and transitioned to the fifth-generation F-35A Lightning II, the Super Hornet has since become a key air combat capability for the RAAF and will continue to be so for the foreseeable future.

NO. 6 SQUADRON

No. 6 Squadron (6SQN) formed in England in June 1917, providing vital training for Australian fighter pilots prior to their posting to the Western Front. Today, 6SQN's mission is to deliver a scalable, agile and dependable Airborne Electronic Attack capability that enhances the survivability and lethality of Joint and Coalition Forces. As an airborne electronic attack aircraft, the EA-18G Growler is capable of disrupting, deceiving and denying a broad range of military electronic systems such as radars or communications. 6SQN operates a fleet of 12 EA-18G Growlers in conjunction with the ADF's air, land and sea forces with its Initial Operational Capability being declared in February 2019.

AIR MOBILITY GROUP

↑ A C-27J Spartan aircraft from No.35 Squadron on the flightline at Port Vila International Airport to provide maritime surveillance support to the Vanuatu exclusive economic zone.

Air Mobility Group (AMG) was originally formed as Air Lift Group on 2 February 1987, although many of the units within AMG can trace their history back to World War II.

Today, AMG is responsible for preparing and conducting air mobility operations for Defence force projection. AMG squadrons are often the first on the scene when deploying Defence assets in times of crisis.

On Defence operations, AMG specialises in providing air logistics support and air-to-air refuelling, as well as conducting airborne operations support. During Humanitarian Assistance and Disaster Relief missions, AMG is frequently deployed in support of the civilian community to provide evacuation and resupply of vulnerable communities. That includes the delivery of specialist equipment and personnel, or search and rescue missions for those in need.

Although Headquarters AMG is located at RAAF Base Richmond in NSW, RAAF Base Amberley is home to a number of subordinate units - Headquarters No.86 Wing, No.33 Squadron, No.35 Squadron and No.36 Squadron. RAAF Base Amberley is also home to three of the six aircraft types flown by AMG – the KC-30A Multi-Role Tanker Transport, the C-27J Spartan and the C-17A Globemaster III.

HEADQUARTERS NO.86 WING

No.86 Wing is responsible for transport of VIP, government and senior Defence leadership through No.34 Squadron (based at Defence Establishment Fairbairn in Canberra), the command, control and management of the KC-30A through No.33 Squadron and the C-17A capability through No.36 Squadron.

NO.33 SQUADRON

No.33 Squadron was officially formed in February 1942 at RAAF Base Townsville and served in World War II. Re-formed at RAAF Base Richmond in 1983, it flew the Boeing 707 until its retirement in June 2008, relocating to RAAF Base Amberley.

In June 2011, the squadron received its first KC-30A aircraft, a heavily modified Airbus A330 airliner capable of air-to-air refuelling with compatible aircraft, and able to provide strategic airlift of up to 270 passengers and over 37,000kg of cargo.

Seven KC-30As are operated by No.33 Squadron from RAAF Base Amberley, which are continuously active in supporting exercises and operations, including Operation OKRA in the Middle East Region from October 2014 to September 2020.

fly the Caribou until 2000. It was re-established again in January 2013, prior to the arrival of the first C-27J in 2015. In early 2019, No.35 Squadron relocated to RAAF Base Amberley, and today operates a fleet of 10 C-27J Spartans.

With the ability to provide airlift of people, equipment and supplies into the most remote and least prepared airstrips in Australia and our region, the C-27J Spartan complements the ADF's existing air mobility fleet as its Light Tactical Fixed Wing capability.

NO.36 SQUADRON

Formed at RAAF Base Laverton in Victoria in March 1942, No.36 Squadron flew Dakotas in New Guinea during World War II and into the post-war years. In 1958, it became the first to enhance their ability to grow and influence change back in their units. Delivering PME Levels 1 and 2 to over 300 students per year the small team at the SPS Detachment at Amberley challenges our junior aviators to invest in their own professional mastery, develop a combat mindset and enhance the decision-making skills essential for success in our rapidly evolving strategic, operational and tactical environments.

Through Program Wirraway, SPS develops aviators by building resilience and emotional intelligence, developing their ability to innovate and adapt to complex environments, and challenging them to succeed in the contemporary operational environment.

Critically, SPS empowers Air Force people to return to their units prepared to influence change and operate effectively under pressure to achieve Air Force objectives. Through a combined program covering leadership, military management and air & space power, aviators are armed with the knowledge, practical and cognitive skills to succeed across the spectrum of operations.

NO.464 SQUADRON DETACHMENT AMBERLEY

No.464 Squadron was re-established in January 2021 to support delivery of Air Force's strategic objectives through the provision of timely, effective, influential and professional communications effects. Headquartered at RAAF Base Glenbrook, the squadron maintains Imagery Sections at RAAF Bases Richmond, Williamtown, Amberley, Darwin, Edinburgh, and in Canberra. It also manages a number of public affairs officers – full-time and reservist – across the country.

The origins of No.464 Squadron extend back to its formation as an Article XV squadron of the RAAF in September 1942, initially flying Ventura medium bombers over Occupied Europe. In October 1943, it was re-equipped with Mosquito fighter bombers, which were flown in precision attacks on German targets including V-1 Flying Bomb launch sites and reinforcements following the D-Day landings. Attacks against German secret police targets (including the Amiens Prison in Operation Jericho) led No.464 Squadron to be nicknamed 'The

BASE COMMUNITY

WOMEN'S INTEGRATED NETWORKING GROUPS

The pressure of juggling career, family and friends can be tough enough, but imagine doing that in a role where you might be the only female or where the nature of the job makes it different to those jobs outside the military.

It is not unusual for women in Defence to find themselves in roles traditionally filled by men, so it helps to have a little support from like-minded peers. That's where Women's Integrated Networking Groups (WINGs) comes in. WINGs is a program that not only supports women in the Air Force by providing an open forum for discussion, but also offers mentoring and role models, allowing women to see just how much they can achieve.

"Essentially, the program is about ongoing engagement with all Air Force women throughout aspects of their career. It offers professional development and personal growth – not to mention opportunity to meet other Air Force women on the base in a friendly, non-judgemental environment," said Wing Commander Sue Yates, WINGs National Program Coordinator.

WINGs gives opportunities to Air Force women to be mentored, meet other Air Force women from a variety of ranks and specialisations, and to seek guidance and advice from other Air Force career women, with the aim of giving them a sustainable and long-term career.

"Sessions are organised by the WINGs Committee and open to all AF women in the region. Session may include a guest speaker from either within Defence or an external organisation to share their career challenges and highlights or provide strategies and tools useful to career females," Wing Commander Yates said.

↓ Air Force women at RAAF Base Amberley networking at a WINGs session.

"Those Air Force women who have attended sessions have described WINGs as rewarding, relevant, inclusive and worth an investment of their time," she added. "Having a good cross-section of ranks and experience adds to the networking and sharing of career experiences, as does the inclusion of male colleagues at some sessions to contribute to discussions and understand the challenges facing an under-represented element of our workforce".

AMB WINGs regularly works with other support agencies on base, including the Amberley Maternity Support Network. "Working closely with other support agencies at Amberley and promoting those through our vast WINGs network is an important way to help support women at different stages of their career" said Squadron Leader Alison Diete, WINGs AMB OIC. Amberley WINGs also has a successful mentoring program which is run on an annual basis.

Information on AMB WINGs (including newsletters issued) can be found at <http://drnet/raaf/AirForce/AMB/FACILITIES/Pages/WINGs.aspx> or by emailing ambwingscommittee@dpe.protected.mil.au.

DEFENCE FAMILIES OF AUSTRALIA

Defence Families of Australia (DFA) is the official ADF families advisory body to the Minister for Defence Personnel and Chief of the Defence Force. It sits outside of Defence systems, allowing DFA independence and impartiality to act in the best interests of ADF families.

ADF members and their families can reach out to DFA if they would like advice on the best point of contact to resolve an issue, have been unsuccessful in resolving an issue through existing channels or have identified an existing policy gap which affects your family.

DFA's key advocacy goals are around improving communications to and for Defence families, children's education, supporting family employment, promoting flexible housing and addressing gaps in existing policies around breakdown of relationships, including family and domestic violence, and bereavement.

A more detailed account of DFA's work is outlined in the DFA Advocacy Map, which is updated bi-annually and can be downloaded from the website. Scan the QR code to view the latest version. Follow DFA on social media for updates on their advocacy and sign up to the newsletter at dfa.org.au.

HISTORY AND HERITAGE – AIR FORCE

HISTORY AND HERITAGE – AIR FORCE

(HH–AF) was formally established on 1 July 2017 to collect, study, preserve and manage records and artefacts from the Australian Flying Corps through to today’s Air Force. HH–AF manages: Air Force’s aviation heritage centres around Australia (including the Amberley Aviation Heritage Centre); the investigation and recovery of historical war casualties around the world; and the restoration and display of historical aircraft and other Australian Defence Force assets.

HH-AF AT AMBERLEY

The following HH–AF sections are located at RAAF Base Amberley:

- Headquarters HH–AF: responsible for the operational management of all of HH–AF’s organisational, personnel, administrative, finance, logistics, safety and business planning
- Static Display Aircraft Support Section: responsible for displaying static aircraft around Australia
- Restoration Support Section: responsible for restoring aircraft and other Australian Defence Force assets prior to putting them on display in aviation heritage centres around Australia.

AMBERLEY AVIATION HERITAGE CENTRE

The RAAF Amberley Aviation Heritage Centre is a must-see attraction for residents and visitors in South-East Queensland, particularly for those interested in military aviation history.

Since June 2011, the Aviation Heritage Centre has boasted a growing range of static historical aircraft, including a World War II Boston

Bomber (courtesy of the Papua New Guinea Government), a Vietnam-era Canberra bomber, Caribou, Douglas Dakota and Lockheed Electra L-10 transport aircraft, Sopwith Camel replica, Boomerang and replica Spitfire fighters, Sabre and F-111 fighter jets, Winjeel, Pilatus Porter, Sioux, Iroquois and Blackhawk helicopters.

Occupying four Bellman Hangars which were part of the group of 14 identical hangars built in 1942, the centre endeavours to add to the collection as more aircraft and artefacts are restored, loaned or donated for display that tell the story of military aviation in South-East Queensland.

The Aviation Heritage Centre is run by a team of Air Force Reservists and supported by dedicated local volunteers from the Ipswich and Brisbane communities, each with a keen interest in military aviation history, and in particular that of South-East Queensland. When you visit the centre, those same dedicated people will tell you about each display and the story behind it with the hope that those amazing stories will get passed on from generation to generation.

Admission to the Aviation Heritage Centre is free, however, donations are gratefully accepted. Due to the centre being located inside the secure zone of RAAF Base Amberley, access is tightly controlled. Please visit the RAAF Amberley Aviation Heritage Centre website (raafamberleyheritage.gov.au) for opening hours and call 1800 623 306 or email RAAF.AAHC@defence.gov.au to confirm visit details. A NEW CITY

GREATER SPRINGFIELD IS an innovative development within the Ipswich council area. With a total area of 2,860 hectares, a CBD that will cover 390 hectares and two train stations, it is Australia's largest master-planned urban environment.

The Mater Hospital, University of Southern Queensland, GE and Northrop Grumman already call Springfield home, along with more than 50,000 residents and the aim is to have a population of 100,000 by the end of the decade.

The vision for the development, which will cost an estimated $85 billion, is to be Australia's first zero net energy city by 2038, embracing renewable energy and electric vehicles. More than 30 percent of the city is designated as green space, centred around the Robelle Domain and the expansive Orion Lagoon public water parks. greaterspringfield.com.au

HOUSING

MOVING HOUSE CAN be both an exciting and daunting prospect – some big decisions need to be made, the most important one being where you are going to live.

Children's education, distance to work for both the member and spouse/partner, health care, lifestyle preferences and the amenity of available housing are all factors to be considered.

SERVICE RESIDENCES

Unless you own a suitable home in your new posting locality, your first port of call is Defence Housing Australia (DHA). DHA provides housing and related services for Australian Defence Force members and their families through its portfolio of service residences (SR).

DHA's portfolio comprises modern houses, townhouses and apartments in selected locations. The majority are off-base, integrated throughout the local community and in reasonably close proximity to Defence bases and establishments, amenities and services.

DHA maintains the currency of its portfolio by upgrading existing properties, sourcing new properties through a variety of construction activities, acquiring properties through traditional real estate markets and directly sourcing and leasing properties from private owners. You are eligible for a SR if you fit into any of these groups:

- You have a spouse, recognised interdependent partner or children who live with you (Accompanied Resident Family)

- You have Recognised Other Persons who normally live with you
- You are a member with unaccompanied resident family and your dependants need housing (Unaccompanied Resident Family).

More detailed information on entitlements can be found in the Pay and Conditions Manual, Chapter 7, pay-conditions.defence.gov.au/pacman/chapter-7 and/or on DHA's website dha.gov.au.

SINGLES

DHA also holds some apartments suitable for single members – called Members Choice accommodation. The process for accessing Members Choice or private rental under Rent Allowance (RA) is the same as for families accessing SR, outlined below.

FINDING A SERVICE RESIDENCE

As soon as you know you require a Service Residence, call DHA on 139 342 to obtain a username and password to access Online Services, a unique online tool that will allow you to select your new home. Online Services will show you:

- Homes within your entitlement
- Interior and exterior photos of the homes
- Property details and a floor plan for each home
- A map showing the location of the home and nearby facilities.

Once you have researched your options, you can reserve a home on Online Services. Note that, whether you are an Accompanied Resident Family or a single, if you own a home in your current posting location which is suitable for you to live in, you will not be eligible for a SR or RA.

PRIVATE RENTAL

If DHA cannot provide you with a suitable SR, you may be eligible for RA. While DHA will manage your RA application, it is up to you to find a suitable rental property. Rental properties in the region can be sourced from local real estate agencies or on any of the following commercial websites:

- realestate.com.au/rent
- domain.com.au/rent
- rent.com.au
- realestateview.com.au/rental-properties
- rentfind.com.au/rentals.

BUYING A HOUSE

You may feel it's time to enter the housing market or wish to sell your home in your losing locality and purchase in the gaining locality. Assistance for home purchase may be available through:

- The Defence Home Ownership Assistance Scheme pays a monthly subsidy on a member's home loan interest. The scheme is administered by the Department of Veterans' Affairs, for details see dhoas.gov.au.
- The Home Purchase or Sale Expenses Allowance reimburses reasonable buying and selling costs. For details see the Pay and Conditions Manual, pay-conditions.defence.gov.au/pacman/chapter-7/part-3.

Note that a decision to purchase your own home in your new locality does not need to be made before you proceed on posting, you can decide at any time during your posting. However, if you are in RA accommodation, you will need to consider the penalties in your lease for early termination.

MORE INFORMATION

For information on all accommodation options, application forms and to access Online Services, visit DHA's website, dha.gov.au.

At times, finding the right housing solution can be challenging. The Directorate of Relocations and Housing is responsible for the provision and delivery of quality housing and related services to ADF members under national contracts and in accordance with Defence Policy. If you require additional support please email DRH.DRHM@defence.gov.au with your enquiry and your local Defence Relocation Manager will be in touch.

POSTING CONNECT

PostingConnect provides direct access to posting services including Toll and DHA from any device. PostingConnect allows members and their families to navigate the many aspects of a posting within one application. See defence.gov.au/postingconnect for more information.

FINDING A GP

To find a GP in your locality, a good place to start is the 'find a health service' tool on the Australian Government's Health Direct website, healthdirect.gov.au/australian-health-services, which allows you to filter out GPs who don't bulk bill. GPs who don't bulk bill will charge you for the visit. You can claim the 'schedule fee' from Medicare, but it will probably be less than the GP's account, leaving a residual cost. Many doctors now offer a service called HICAPS that allows you to claim your Medicare rebate when you pay at the doctor's surgery. Joining a social group to connect with others in your area is also good way to glean advice on local GPs and medical centres.

DEFENCE FAMILY HEALTH CARE

The National ADF Family Health Program will reimburse dependants of ADF members for out-of-pocket expenses for all GP visits. Specialist services will also be reimbursed, up to a total allocation of $800 per dependent which can be shared between dependents. For more information visit adffamilyhealth.com or phone 02 6266 3547.

PRIVATE HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare makes adequate provision to cover all Australian citizens for their essential health needs. However, Medicare doesn't cover many 'extras' such as ambulance services, most dental services, spectacles, contact lenses, hearing aids and cosmetic surgery.

You may choose to take out private health insurance to provide your family with a wider range of options and more comprehensive cover. Health insurance policies can be either hospital or general treatment (extras) or a combination of both. Your decision to purchase private insurance is a personal one and will be based on a number of factors:

- The advantages of having more choices, for instance the ability to choose your surgeon/obstetrician/specialist and the hospital you prefer from the private health insurer's agreed providers
- The probability of obtaining treatment faster than you might do on a public hospital waiting list
- Your desire to be covered for the extras
- The cost of private health cover for different options that are offered by the numerous providers in the health-insurance market.

With respect to the cost, you will also need to consider the tax implications of the Medicare Levy surcharge, which (as distinct from the Medicare Levy) is an additional tax imposed on those with a taxable income above a certain threshold who do not have a prescribed level of private health insurance.

The cost of your private health insurance policy will also be influenced by your age when you commence your policy. Once you turn 31, a Lifetime Health Cover (LHC) loading of two percent is added to your hospital cover premium for every year you're without hospital cover, e.g. if you delay until age 40, your LHC would be 20 percent. Note that permanent ADF members are considered to have had private hospital cover while serving.

EARLY LEARNING

Choosing the right childcare or early learning service will depend on your family's needs and where you and your child will feel most comfortable.

A S WELL AS PROVIDING CARE, childcare and early learning services provide an opportunity for your child to develop social, emotional and learning skills. There is a range of care and play-based learning options available for babies and children up to six years of age. Some childcare providers also offer before- and after-school care to school-aged children.

Childcare may be offered by private providers, community groups, government agencies, individuals, babysitters or nannies. There are various education and care options available and it's important to research the type of early education and care that suits you and your children best well in advance.

LONG DAY CARE

A good option for those who work long days and need care for their children during business hours, long day care operates for at least eight hours a day, typically Monday to Friday, in a childcare centre and caters for children from birth to school age. It provides preparation for school through a play-based learning curriculum.

FAMILY DAY CARE

For parents who want their children to learn and play in small groups in a homelike environment, family day care caters for children from birth to 12 years, and is held in the home of a registered educator. They may also offer outside-school-hours care.

KINDERGARTEN

Aimed at children aged three to five years who are almost ready for primary school, kindergarten (or preschool) can be a standalone service or part of another care service or school. The state-funded service usually offers shorter hours or sessional education and care during school terms. Kindergarten provides preparation for school through a play-based learning curriculum.

OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL HOURS CARE

Operating before and after school and/or during school holidays, this service works well for working parents with school-age children who need care outside of school hours. It provides education and care with a play-based curriculum.

OCCASIONAL CHILDCARE

Offered on a casual basis for short periods of time, occasional childcare caters for children, from birth to school age and is useful for parents with short-term or last-minute needs.

CHILDCARE RATINGS

Kindergarten, long day care, outside-school-hours care and family day care services are assessed and rated under the National Quality Framework, which provides a national approach to regulation, assessment and quality improvement for early childhood education and care. To check a providers' rating go to cecq.gov.au/resources/national-registers. The Queensland Government monitors all services to ensure they meet their legal requirements, regardless of whether they have been assessed and rated.

APPROVED KINDERGARTEN PROGRAMS

Non-compulsory approved kindergarten programs are taught by qualified early childhood teachers and meet strict quality guidelines set by the Australian and Queensland governments. They are offered in kindergartens, long-day-care services and limited-hours care for children in the year before prep (i.e. children who are four years old by 30 June in the year they start). They are play based and run for 15 hours a week for 40 weeks, or one school year.

HOW TO CHOOSE A SERVICE

Consider your child's needs and your family circumstances when choosing childcare. While you can expect national or state-approved services to meet minimum standards, try to visit a selection to compare what they offer before making a decision. Many services have a waiting list, so it is best to make a decision well in advance. Check with your chosen service to find out whether:

- their operating hours and days suit your family
- places are available for new enrolments
- the fees suit your budget
- there are any costs over and above the fees
- there is a fee to be on a waiting list
- children with additional needs are supported
- they offer an education program (such as kindergarten or long day care)
- the staff are well qualified and experienced
- the routine will suit your child
- meals are provided (ask to see a sample meal plan)
- the carer-to-child ratio suits your needs
- you can claim the Child Care Subsidy to help cover the costs of the service.

Visit the service to meet the staff, see the facilities and experience the atmosphere. Make an appointment to ensure someone is available to talk to you. Ask questions and share information about your child. The service should be able to give you written information that may include:

- days and times when the service is open
- all fees you will have to pay (including public holidays, late fees, holidays and when your child is away sick)
- pick-up and drop-off procedures
- how your child's day will be organised and their individual needs met
- excursions and outings
- how injuries, illness and infectious diseases are

- how you can participate in the decisions affecting your child and how the service will respond to complaints and concerns.

For more advice on what to look for see qld.gov.au/families/babies/childcare/finding/assessing.

FIND AN EARLY CHILDHOOD SERVICE

Search the Starting Blocks website (startingblocks.gov.au/find-child-care) to find a kindergarten, long day care, family day care and outside schools hours care, captured under the National Law and National Quality Framework.

SPECIAL NEEDS

The Australian Government's Inclusion Support Program (education.gov.au/child-care-package/inclusion-support-program) and the Queensland Government's Kindergarten Inclusion Support Scheme (see earlychildhood.qld.gov.au) may provide funding to childcare or kindergarten services to help them provide:

- specialist equipment and resources
- training and professional development for teachers
- extra teacher aide time
- more educators or carers.

WAITING LISTS

Some childcare services use waiting lists to manage high demand and places are allocated to families with the greatest need for childcare. Where demand for childcare is high, all approved services with the exception of Occasional Care must adhere to Priority of Access Guidelines (see dss.gov.au) to ensure there is a fair childcare system.

CHILD CARE SUBSIDY

The Australian Government provides families with financial assistance to help cover the costs of approved childcare, under the Child Care Subsidy and Additional Child Care Subsidy. The Child Care Subsidy is income tested and is usually paid directly to approved Child Care Services to reduce the fees that eligible families pay. You can apply for the Child Care Subsidy online or in person through Centrelink. To apply online, visit servicesaustralia.gov.au.

SCHOOLING

There's a lot to learn about how primary schools and high schools function – especially as different states have different arrangements in place. Here's some information about schooling in Queensland.

IN QUEENSLAND it is compulsory for children to attend school from the age of six years and six months until they turn 16, or they complete Year 10 (whichever comes first). You can choose to send your child to a state/public school (education.qld.gov.au), independent school (www.isq.qld.edu.au) or Catholic school (qcec.catholic.edu.au).

Publicly funded state education includes early childhood development programs; primary schools, secondary schools and P-10/12 schools; special schools; hospital schools; schools of distance education; centres for continuing secondary education; outdoor and environmental education centres; and Queensland Academies.

PRIMARY SCHOOL

Starting school is a major milestone for children and their families, so the decision you make about their education is important. The Department of Education Schools Directory (schoolsdirectory).

eq.edu.au) will help you find state and private schools in your area.

Children attending state school usually go to the school closest to where they live. However, parents can send their children to the state school of their choice, depending on available places. Some schools have a School Enrolment Management Plan, which means students may not be able to attend unless they live within the designated catchment zone. To help you choose the best school for your child, look at the school websites for information about performance, mission, staffing, funding and resources. You can also get information and compare schools at the My School website (myschool.edu.au). Once you have a shortlist, make an appointment to meet the principal and staff and see the school facilities.

To help decide which school is best for your child, consider the following:

- What are your child's needs and interests? Will the school be able to cater for them?

- Is the school reasonably close to home, work and carers?
- What facilities does the school offer? Are you comfortable with the feel of it?
- What are the school policies on homework, discipline and safety?
- Are other services available, such as after - school care?

Parents may wish to ask schools about:

- the size of the school
- when to enrol
- teaching methods and classroom environment
- uniform policy
- school hours
- levies
- assessment and reporting procedures
- available resources
- extracurricular activities
- communication between home and school
- student participation, e.g. school council
- parental involvement, such as parents and citizens' association.

Copies of the school rules or code of conduct, newsletters, prospectus and annual report will give you further information about the school and its activities.

STARTING SCHOOL

Enrolment forms and details of school enrolment processes are generally published on school websites. Usually, a child can be enrolled a year ahead for state schools and up to two years for non-state schools.

TO BOOK A PERSONALISED TOUR OR FOR MORE INFORMATION SEE IPSWICHGRAMMAR.COM

Before starting school, children are usually invited to visit their new school so they can become familiar with it. There are also a lot of things families can do to help make a child's transition to school successful, including:

- getting to know as much about the school as they can
- talking with their child about school
- taking their child to the school to meet the teachers and to find out where things are
- making sure their child knows the transport arrangements for getting to and from school
- getting to know other families with children who will be in the same class as their child
- talking with their child about eating, toileting and hygiene at school
- making sure their child has had experiences of public toilets, libraries and public transport
- if appropriate, ensuring their child knows how before- and after-school-hours care will work
- answering their child's questions about school
- reading some children's books about starting school with their child
- always being positive and realistic about starting school.

SECONDARY SCHOOL

Secondary or high school, Year 7 to 12, is the final period of compulsory education for Queensland students. Students are eligible to enter the first year of secondary school, Year 7, after completing primary education (Prep or Year 1 to Year 6). You may enrol your child in the local secondary school by contacting the school directly. Secondary schools have different ways of introducing primary students to their school. Most students settle in quickly in response to the carefully designed transition programs initiated by schools. Primary and secondary schools cooperate to ease students through the transition.

The senior years of education (Year 10–12) are important for students wishing to progress to university or further study. Students who have completed all 12 years of compulsory education from Year 1 to 12 will be eligible to qualify for the Queensland Certificate of Education (QCE). Year 12 students applying for tertiary study will generally be assessed on their Australian Tertiary Admission Rank.

ADJUSTING TO A NEW SCHOOL

If your child is transferring to a new school, the principal will have processes to help them adjust, such as buddy systems. Even for students who are looking forward to it, a change in school may cause distress. Signs of stress include irritability, reluctance to talk, sleep disturbance, stomach aches, headaches and not wanting to go to school. The teacher or principal can provide support and advice if your child is having difficulty settling in.

If your child is moving from a non-state school to a state school (or vice versa) in Queensland, the new school can request a transfer note from the previous school. There is no need for parents or carers to complete any additional forms.

If your child has moved to Queensland from interstate, the new school can request consent from you to obtain your child's information from the previous school using the interstate student data transfer note. This system enables the new school to support the educational placements of new students. A transfer note is not required for students transferring their enrolment from one Queensland state school to another (including primary to secondary). Students who change schools during Year 11 or 12 can receive a credit transfer and their previous study at a school in Queensland, interstate or overseas may count towards their QCE.

When changing schools:

- consider the timing of the move and if the move can coincide with the change of term
- involve your children in discussions and decisions about moving – this may help allay any fears or concerns they have
- discuss the forthcoming move with your current school and collect documentation outlining student achievement levels and education history – this will help with appropriate placement at the new school
- prepare a list of your children's particular needs e.g. preferred subjects, transport needs, sporting and other interests
- consider subject choices, special education provisions, transport to and from school, vocational education programs, and cultural and sporting opportunities
- consider behaviour management, discipline and uniform policies.

SUPPORT FOR DEFENCE KIDS

If you're keen to minimise any disruption to your child's education as a result of your family's relocation, talk to Defence Member and Family Support.

DEFENCE MEMBER AND FAMILY SUPPORT

(DMFS) provides information, resources and programs to help with the transition between schools and education systems when ADF members and their families move, and provides support for the unique needs of Defence kids.

ADF EQUIP

The ADF Equip Program is designed to help children manage the challenges associated with Defence life. The program supports children to learn appropriate strategies to help them manage the challenge of parental absence and relocation related to service. It includes facilitated sessions tailored to age group and is open to children aged between five and 18 years.

EDUCATION LIAISON OFFICERS

Education liaison officers are experienced staff who help Defence families as they move around the country, providing information, advice, referral and specialised assistance. They are located in each state and territory and have extensive knowledge about the local schools and education systems as well as the challenges faced by Defence children. The assistance provided includes:

- Informing families about local schools and education systems
- Linking families with special education providers, resources or support agencies

according to their children's individual needs (including special needs students)

- Working with schools to ensure a supportive education environment and to raise awareness of issues facing Defence children
- Informing families about Defence support services available, such as financial assistance under the Education Assistance Scheme.

DEFENCE SCHOOL MENTORS

DMFS's school mentor program provides support to the children of ADF members, particularly when moving in and out of a school on posting or when a parent is absent from home. Under the program, mentors in primary and secondary schools support Defence students transitioning from school to school and during times of parental absence. Mentors help schools, families and children to develop strategies to successfully integrate into the school and community. Their role also includes:

- Coordinating appropriate welcome and farewell activities
- Smoothing the transition between different schools and different education systems (including minimising the impact of relocation on learning outcomes)
- Monitoring the social, emotional and academic wellbeing of Defence students

- Helping students develop self-confidence, self-reliance and resilience
- Referring students to services or school community programs that meet their needs.

To see which schools in your area are currently funded under the program, see www.defence.gov.au/adf-members-families/family-programs-services/support-for-children/defence-school-mentor-program

CHILDCARE

DMFS maintains a network of childcare centres around Australia and has a range of programs to support the availability of childcare services to Defence families, who might face difficulties accessing childcare. That includes access to an individual case management service to help them find registered childcare services in their local community.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE FOR FAMILIES

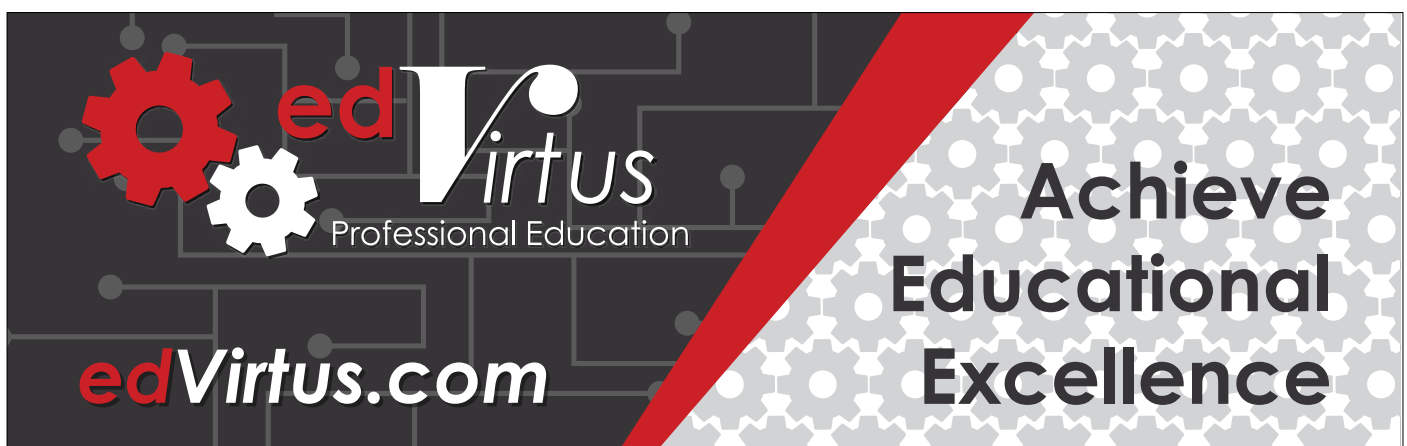

Defence families can access a range of financial support to help minimise the disruption to schooling caused by posting and relocations. The support available includes:

- Tutoring assistance
- Boarding school allowance
- Tertiary accommodation
- Students with special needs
- Reimbursement of a lost scholarship
- Reunion travel.

The aim is to provide students with educational stability or short-term assistance to help overcome any immediate difficulties with education or emotional wellbeing as a result of relocation.

THE VETERAN COMMUNITY

↑ Members from the Joint Logistics Unit (South Queensland) during the Anzac Day 2023 march in Ipswich.

There is wide range of support available to veterans of all ages.

THE VETERAN COMMUNITY is a critical part of the broader Amberley Base community. As the majority of Amberley Defence staff are veterans themselves, having served overseas and in Australia, our staff and units appreciate the vital role veterans' organisation have in supporting our serving and ex-serving veterans.

The organisations are critical to supporting and advocating for our veterans and their families, ensuring the sacrifices of those who have served before us are appropriately remembered and providing a community for veterans to be part of after they leave the defence forces. RAAF Base Amberley works in partnership with those organisations by supporting, promoting and assisting them to deliver the support our serving and ex-serving veterans need and value.

Commemorations are a key support activity for our units where we work with community partners in commemorating those who have served in the defence of our nation. While members participate as a priority in key national commemoration events such as Anzac Day and Remembrance Day, they also support a variety of commemorations throughout the year.

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS (DVA)

DVA services include:

- Financial support
- healthcare
- rehabilitation
- mental-health care
- help returning to civilian life
- commemoration and recognition
- homecare assistance
- help with housing
- historical information.

DVA continues to transform, changing the way it operates, putting the needs and wellbeing of veterans at the heart of everything it does.

The program of work underway is building a better client experience, making it faster and easier for veterans and their families to get the treatment and support they need, when they need it.

Connect with DVA online

Through DVA's online portal, MyService, you can update your personal and contact details, submit claims and view your veteran profile.

To register visit dva.gov.au/myservice.

Mental health support

DVA has a strong focus on mental-health treatment. Under a program called Non-Liability Health Care, DVA funds treatment for all mental-health conditions, whether related to service or not, for those with at least one day of continuous full-time service in the ADF, as well as eligible Reservists. See dva.gov.au/nlhc. In addition, mental-health support including free and confidential counselling 24/7 is offered through Open Arms (see page 48).

Finding employment after the ADF

For ADF personnel transitioning back into civilian life, there is an information page for veterans on the government's Workforce Australia website (workforceaustralia.gov.au) to help translate service training and skills to the civilian workforce. There is also an optional 'Defence Force experience desirable' flag for vacancies listed on the jobactive website, helping veterans connect with employers.

The Prime Minister's Veterans' Employment Program was established in 2016 to raise awareness of the enormous value and unique experience of veterans, for more information see veteranemployment.gov.au.

On-base support

Veteran Support Officers (VSOs) can offer members information and advice about the support and entitlements they may be able to receive through DVA. The levels of support range from information on MyService through to instructions on how to submit a claim while you are still enlisted. VSOs are DVA staff located on Defence bases. To make an appointment, email VSO@dva.gov.au or phone DVA on 1800 838 372.

AIR FORCE ASSOCIATION QLD

Who we are

The Air Force Association is the peak veterans support organisation for RAAF and ex-RAAF members and their families in Australia. As the peak body, the Association is recognised by government and other veteran's organisations as the representative organisation for ex-RAAF members, with a primary goal of providing assistance to fellow members. As one of the oldest veteran support organisations, the Association has been influential in advocating for ex-RAAF members' needs resulting from service in World War I, World War II, post-war Southeast Asia, peacekeeping operations and in more recent years, the high operational tempo of today's modern Air Force.

In Queensland, the Air Force Association (RAAFA) Qld Division comprises 15 branches, with the majority in the South East; and a headquarters branch for members who live in a district where there is no Branch. RAAFA Qld is well positioned to interact with other veterans' organisations, advocate to the Queensland Government and coordinate Air Force ceremonies throughout the state.

Our Mission

The Air Force Association Queensland exists to support the welfare of the Air Force family through advocacy, assistance, camaraderie, and commemoration.

1. Advocacy. At the federal and state government levels, we provide an influential voice in representing ex-Air Force members' needs on veterans' issues. We work with our national board, state and federal veteran's authorities and other veterans' support organisations in ensuring the needs and interests of those who have served in the Air Force and their families are met. We also assist Air Force veterans in interpreting veteran policy and entitlements supporting them in their development of compensation claims and appeals.

2. Commemoration and Heritage. Recognising the importance of commemorating the deeds of those who have served before and fostering the legacy they have left for generations to come, we partner with the RAAF at Amberley and Townsville and other stakeholders, including the Australian Air Force Cadets, conducting Air Force-specific ceremonies, the preservation of Air Force heritage and educating Queenslanders on the Air Force story and Queensland's contribution to that story.

3. Assistance. We appreciate ex-serving members and their families of various ages will require assistance and support at times and we can be there for them when needed.

4. Camaraderie. We hold various events, functions and activities across Queensland providing avenues for our broader Air Force family to remain connected. While these activities are popular with our aged members, we also place much importance on bringing our younger veterans together with our older members to share stories, support each other, and provide mentorship and foster values.

Our Priorities

- To provide advocacy in partnership with the broader veteran's support community
- To provide better representation and support for the Air Force family
- To gain recognition as a respected, effective and leading ex-service organisation
- To ensure Queensland has a better understanding of the Air Force story and the state's contribution to that story.

Since 1923, Legacy has strived to ensure that the partners and children of veterans who gave their lives or health in service are looked after.

Legacy volunteers make a meaningful impact in the lives of our veterans' families.

This may be through mentorship, practical and social support, and taking part in activities like youth camps, outings and more.

Legacy is an iconic Australian charity supporting the families of former Australian Defence Force personnel. Our mission is simple – ensuring that partners and children of veterans who gave their lives or health in service to our nation can fully realise their potential.

Across Brisbane and Ipswich, Legacy supports 6,230 families, including 380 children and dependents with a disability through the help of nearly 320 dedicated volunteers.

Yulia and Javas are one of those Legacy families. Norm, a dedicated husband and father, passed away from cancer as a result of his service. As Yulia's family lives in Indonesia, she and her son have no immediate or extended family in Australia. In Legacy, Yulia and Javas have another family to turn to in times of need. "Being part of Legacy has kept the memory of his dad close to my little boy, because he knows that we have Legacy's support because of his father's war service," says Yulia.

When Javas was struggling a little as he only had an old tablet and couldn't access some of the school programs, with the help of donors, Legacy was able to provide him with a new laptop. Yulia said she is incredibly grateful for the support of her Legatee Tracey, and the many Legacy team members of who have gone "above and beyond" to support her family.

Open Arms – Veterans & Families Counselling is Australia's leading national provider of high quality, free and confidential counselling and support services for Australian veterans and their families. Similar to other community-based mental health services, Open Arms clients experience depression, anxiety, substance use challenges, workplace struggles, relationship concerns and parenting and family issues. The difference with Open Arms is that staff members have specialist training in the military experience. And, while they support families experiencing the routine daily challenges, they also understand the unique stressors military and veteran families experience relating to the posting cycle, training exercises, deployments, partner employment, and more.

A unique service offered by Open Arms is their Community and Peer Program. The program connects veterans and family members with peers that have served in the Australian Defence Force—or had family members who have served – and have had the experience of accessing mental health services for their own wellbeing. Peers work collaboratively with veterans, family supports, community agencies and mental health clinicians to complement other services.

To better serve the ADF community, there are five Open Arms office sites in the South Queensland region, with the closest to Amberley in Ipswich, and a network of professional providers across metropolitan and regional areas.

If you or someone you know wants someone to talk to, even just for a chat, Open Arms is available 24/7 by calling 1800 011 046. The service is free and confidential and there is always a team member, who understands the military experience, available to answer your call.

TIME OUT

There's plenty to see and do in beautiful South-East Queensland.

IPSWICH

THE OLDEST PROVINCIAL CITY in Queensland, Ipswich has a rich history. Established in 1827 as a convict outstation for quarrying limestone and farming, Ipswich became a busy port on the Bremer River and grew in importance with the development of its coal mines and railways.

Renowned for its architectural, natural and cultural heritage, Ipswich still operates from many of its historical buildings and homes, with more than 6,000 heritage-listed sites. There are also some charming townships within the western rural areas. Discover Ipswich's heritage through the historical parks and gardens, galleries and antique stores that scatter the city.

HERITAGE

Ipswich Antique Centre is a multi-dealer antique centre in the 1895 Heritage-listed Congregational Sunday School Hall. The centre is air-conditioned and its ever-changing collections ranges from Australian and English antiques to retro furniture to jewellery and glassware. 86 East Street, Ipswich. ipswichantiquecentre.com.au

Top of Town is a historic stretch of Brisbane Street bordered by Ellenborough and Waghorn Streets, with cafes, restaurants, vintage stores, boutiques, homewares and collectibles on offer. Cooneana Heritage Centre is the place to learn about Ipswich's mining history. Home to the Ipswich Historical Society, the centre contains historical photographs, artefacts and mining displays that reflect the town's convict past. 1041 Redbank Plains Rd, New Chum.

Trails range from the gently rolling Blackleg Gully Circuit up to the more advanced rollercoaster-style Inca trail. Walk along the Lewis Thomas Historical Trail to learn about the coal mining history of the reserve as you pass open mine tunnels and hand-dug mine shafts.

Flinders Peak is a tough 7km return from the Flinders Plum recreation area, with 500m of vertical climb. For experienced walkers, it takes about 90 minutes to reach the summit for views of the Scenic Rim and RAAF Base Amberley.

ON THE WATER

With the Bremer and Brisbane Rivers, Ipswich has some great canoeing, kayaking and fishing spots. On the Brisbane River, Colleges Crossing Recreation Reserve (Mt Crosby Rd, Chuwar) is the most accessible place for a paddle, with a canoe launch area and barbecue facilities. You can fish off the bank or from a kayak. Common catches are bream, flathead and garfish. Be aware that there are bullsharks and stonefish in that part of the river.

For the more adventurous, the 21km paddle from Burton's Bridge (East Summervilles Rd, Borallan) to Kholo Bridge is popular. Paddle with the current down to Sapling Pocket for a picnic before continuing to Kholo Gardens, and then to Kholo Bridge. There are numerous sets of rapids as well as long, still sections where you may see platypus. You will need to coordinate a drop-off and pick-up for this trip.

The stretch between Kholo Gardens and Kholo Bridge is good spot for fishing for bream, bass, catfish and perch. Fishing downstream from the bridge to the Mt Crosby weir is illegal.

The Bremer River has 25km of water suitable for kayaking. Safe access points include: Shapcott Park, Gladstone Rd, Coalfalls; Cribb Park, Norma Brown St, North Ipswich; and Joseph Brady Park, Riverside Avenue, Barellan Point.

From Joseph Brady Park you can explore the junction of the Bremer and Brisbane Rivers. The park is a good spot for a family picnic with barbecues and playgrounds and for fishermen, common catches are bream, catfish and flathead. The Ipswich Canoe Trail at Cribb Park has some good fishing spots with bass and bream.

OUT OF TOWN

Take a drive to Marburg, about 20 minutes west of Ipswich CBD. Stop in at Woodlands of Marburg (woodlandsofmarburg.com) for a coffee or lunch on the weekend and take a stroll around the gardens. Marburg's streets are lined with beautifully restored heritage buildings including the old German Baptist Church, Bielefeld's Store and the historic hotel built in 1879.

Get up close to llamas at The Llama Farm in Pine Mountain (thellamafarm.com.au), take one for a walk or book into one of their Little Llama Farmer school holiday programs. You can feed and pet a range of animals at the Haigslea Ewe Nique Hobby Farm (eweniquehobbyfarm.com.au) and see newborn lambs in lambing season. For a camel ride or camel milk produce, visit Summer Land Camel Farm (summerlandcamels.com.au).

ADVENTURE

For a bird's-eye view, take a hot air balloon flight (floatingimages.com.au) or a helicopter tour (pterodactylhelicopters.com.au).

Willowbank Raceway (willowbankraceway.com.au) has a year-round program of drag racing including the Winternationals in June, the largest drag racing event outside of the USA. An array of events is held at Queensland Raceway (qldraceways.com.au), where you can even get behind the wheel of a supercar.
